*MOVIE MASHTERPIECE THEATRE

COMEDY AND FILM

Thursday February 25 - Movie Mashterpiece Theatre – Atom Age Vampire (7pm) $9

The Phoenix National Comedy Theatre tackles another Italian horror flick, this time they go black and white with the Atom Age Vampire (1960) a la Mystery Science Theater 3000 in a mix of improvisation, comedy and a really bad movie. A stripper is horribly disfigured in a car accident. A brilliant scientist develops a treatment that restores her beauty and falls in love with her. To preserve her appearance the doctor must give her additional treatments using glands taken from murdered women. His unexplained ability to turn into a hideous monster helps with this problem but does nothing to win her love. The doctor's woes multiply as the police and the girl's boyfriend begin to close in on him. Laughs galore will ensue as the National Comedy Theatre troupe performs a live accompaniment to this b-movie schlock.

EXCLUSIVE ENGAGEMENTS

Friday March 26 (6, 8, 10pm), Saturday March 27 (4, 6, 8 & 10PM) & Sunday March 28 (12, 2, 4, 6pm) –
Frozen $8

Adam Green (Hatchet) is back with Frozen (2010). A typical day on the slopes turns into a chilling nightmare for three snowboarders when they get stranded on the chairlift before their last run. As the ski patrol switches off the night lights, they realize with growing panic that they've been left behind dangling high off the ground with no way down. With the resort closed until the following weekend and frostbite and hypothermia already setting in, the trio is forced to take desperate measures to escape off the mountain before they freeze to death. Once they make their move, they discover with horror that they have much more to fear than just the frigid cold. As they combat unexpected obstacles, they start to question if their will to survive is strong enough to overcome the worst ways to die. "It will do for skiing, what Jaws did for swimming!" Bloody Disgusting
